ELA Operations and Technology Award Finalists Preview Success During International Decision Systems' User Conference, Executive Forum

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. – (June 21, 2006) -- International Decision Systems hosted more than 40 industry organizations for two days of training during its user conference completed last week. In addition, the senior officers of 12 organizations joined together for ExecConnect 2006 an informational exchange about the trends and issues shaping the leasing and asset finance industry. As part of this exchange, BB&T Leasing and CoBank participated in the general session and offered insight into how the use of IDS products helped them achieve operational successes now nominated for the 2006 Equipment Leasing Association Operations and Technology Excellence award.

The award, to be announced on June 22, recognizes industry organizations for breakthrough achievements that drive growth with a demonstrated innovative use of technology to improve operations, enter new markets and build overall ROI.

“ExecConnect 2006 was an opportunity to discuss the key market imperatives impacting the leasing industry today,” says Todd Davis, President and Director of International Decision Systems. “We’re all challenged by the same collective issues – top-line growth, efficient operations and compliance. This leadership group engaged our attendees as they discussed the dynamics shaping their businesses and our collective future.”

International Decision Systems annually hosts its client organizations for a user conference. The 2006 event known as ConnectionPoint 2006 – Partners in Progress included extensive training on InfoAnalysis™, Rapport™, LeaseEnterprise®, InfoLease® and ProFinia™. More than 140 representatives from across the United States and Australia attended. In addition, the company offers year-round training opportunities at its headquarters and at client sites worldwide as part of International Decision Systems University.
